Hello There!

My name is Gonzalo Passano and I'm a design major, thanks for checking out my site. To start things of I should probably mention that I started out late in the whole design business, for I only started getting really into it by the time I started college, so I ain't a wiz at it yet, but I have an understanding on the principles of what makes a design stand out, and I'm constantly and still am learning new things to help me improve on skills I already know and new techniques/programs that could make future jobs easier.

Throughout this site you can have a look at my past works that I done in and out of college, so may look like a beginner's work, but than it gradually gets better as you scroll along. As I mentioned my college, I'm still currently in the process of getting my BA in Design from Queens College.
